

HSBC Central Travel Account: Connecting you with the rest of the world

By giving you a central account for all your air travel bookings, the HSBC Central Travel Account connects your employees with everywhere they need to be.

For companies with air travel spend of more than $250k a year, using HSBC Central Travel Account to book through your Travel Management Company (TMC) removes the need to use personal cards and complements the individual corporate card. This places the control back in your hands.

As with all HSBC Commercial Cards, the greatest benefit is in the connections they bring.

We do not work with any partner banks so the relationship with us is simple and direct from the outset. This approach extends to all your air travel bookings and payments too.

Using HSBC Central Travel Account with your preferred TMC means all reporting, invoicing and payments for authorised air travel, automatically fall in line with your own policy guidelines. Central Travel Accounts also allow you to centralise booking of high value air travel purchases, so that individual corporate card limits are freed up to be used for hotels and other incidentals.

And with up to ten additional customer defined data fields captured at booking, our enriched data reporting means matching and reconciling all your expenses is more accurate and easier than ever.

With one central statement issued monthly, gaining a consolidated view of your total spend is efficient. With integrated data and full reporting and analysis, you benefit from process efficiencies. In addition, the improved visibility over spend helps you build stronger relationships with your suppliers and supports a stronger negotiating position with them.

How HSBC Central Travel Card Account works:

1. Lodge your card and air travel policy with your preferred TMC.
2. Your employee calls the TMC or goes online to book and pay for their air travel.
3. HSBC retrieves the invoice data from the TMC and matches it with the transaction data.
4. HSBC provides you with enriched data every month so you can reconcile all air travel expenses seamlessly.

HSBC Central Travel Card Account connects every step of the journey, giving you the easiest way to manage your air travel payments whilst ensuring your employees can be where they need to be.
